Philanthropic support to Hudson Valley Community College and its charitable foundation totaled $1,319,369 during the 2007–08 academic year. Cash and in-kind donations came from corporations, faculty, staff, alumni and charitable foundations, and benefited a variety of the college’s academic programs, including high-cost programs in the allied health sciences and technologies. Donations also funded more than $256,287 in Hudson Valley Community College Foundation scholarships. The awards, ranging from $90 to full-tuition, books and fees, were given to more than 300 students studying everything from Electrical Construction and Maintenance to Early Childhood Education.

Hudson Valley Community College, and colleges throughout the country, annually report philanthropic support to the Voluntary Support of Education Survey, which is the authoritative national source of information on private giving to colleges and universities nationwide. The RAND Corporation, has managed the survey as a public service for more than 50 years.

Corporate gifts received from September 2007 to August 2008 totaled $569,851, which was nearly 47 percent of all charitable support to the college; and mirrors giving to community colleges and public institutions nationwide. MetLife Foundation made the largest gift, donating $100,000 to fund the MetLife Community Colleges and Pathways to Student Success program to significantly boost the services provided to at-risk students. Additionally, Contest Software Systems of Manchester, New Hampshire, donated electrical estimating software, used to read blueprints, valued at $50,000 to benefit the college’s Building Systems Technology programs.

The William Grundy Broughton Charitable Private Foundation, Albany Medical Center, U.W. Marx Construction and Capital Communications Federal Credit Union made other significant gifts. The William Grundy Broughton Charitable Private Foundation contributed $15,000 for the college’s College in the High School Program. Albany Medical Center donated $11,000 for its scholarship program for students pursuing health care-related associate’s degrees. Capital Communications Federal Credit Union and U.W. Marx Construction’s gifts of $10,000 each benefited the college’s Annual Fund. Additionally, the college received a gift from the Family of Antoni Milkowski, which donated sculpture by the artist to grace the campus. The sculpture entitled “Runner” was installed on the campus grounds this fall.

Beyond the actual monies received, The Foundation also recorded more than $5 million in pledges to its first-ever comprehensive campaign. The Promise of Our Region campaign, begun in 2006, provides the college with a forum to raise funds in support of targeted, high-cost/high-need academic programs. Nursing, Allied Health, Automotive Technologies, and Engineering and Energy Technologies were the top programs garnering noteworthy commitments.

The Foundation also received support from other charitable foundations, including $44,700 from the Second Chance Scholarship Foundation to benefit the Foundation’s Second Chance Scholarship Fund, which provides merit-based scholarships to students who have overcome tremendous personal obstacles to continue their education.

Unrestricted gifts from individuals — including alumni, faculty and staff — totaled $104,829, which comprised 43 percent of the college’s Annual Fund. The Annual Fund, which raised $241,839 in 2007–08, assists the college in meeting unmet needs and seizing unexpected opportunities.

The Foundation, celebrating its 25th Anniversary in 2008, is a not-for-profit charitable corporation formed in 1983 to philanthropically support the college’s mission. Gifts from alumni, corporations and friends are used to enhance programs, facilities and scholarship opportunities.

New Funds Established

The Collegiate Academic Support Program Fund is an emergency assistance fund established to support Hudson Valley Community College students receiving services from the Collegiate Academic Support Program who face a catastrophic situation and need funds to continue their education.

The Professor Ronald Dow Scholarship was created to honor Professor Ronald Dow, who retired in 2007 after 35 years of service to the college. Professor Dow was directly involved with educating more than 5,000 students on the finer points of criminal law, and was in many ways instrumental in the growth and success of the Criminal Justice degree programs at Hudson Valley Community College. The scholarship is awarded to a full-time, matriculated student enrolled in the Criminal Justice curriculum.

The Northeastern Subcontractors Association Scholarship in memory of Fred Dykeman honors Fred Dykeman, a NESCA member for 20 years, who also served as president of the Eastern Contractors Association. The scholarship is awarded to an adult returning student planning to enroll in the college’s Electrical Construction and Maintenance or Construction Technology program. Preference is extended to applicants demonstrating a relationship to NESCA (son, daughter, or other relative of a NESCA member or an employee of a NESCA member).

The Marshall and Sterling Scholarship has been established to support individuals not currently working, interning or otherwise engaged in the insurance industry. Four $500 scholarships will be awarded annually.

The MetLife Community Colleges and Pathways to Student Success Fund has been established to substantially enhance the services provided to at-risk students through an academic strategy of engagement that supports the college mission to provide dynamic, student-centered, comprehensive and accessible educational opportunities that addresses the diverse needs of the community.

The Stephen Metzgar Fund has been established to support innovative programming and professional development needs in the field of study regarding service to individuals with intellectual disabilities. Sarah Metzgar Boggess, president of the Foundation, established the fund to honor the memory of her brother.

The Simmons Machine Tool Corporation Manufacturing Technical Systems Scholarship has been established to provide financial support to graduating high school students who have maintained at least an 80 average. The recipient must be planning to enroll in the Manufacturing Technical Systems program at Hudson Valley Community College. The scholarship is renewable for up to four semesters as long as the recipient maintains a 2.0 GPA.

The Professor Michael Such Criminal Justice Scholarship, established by Assistant Professor Michael Such, has been established to support students in the Criminal Justice degree programs at the college.

The Abbott L. Wiley Scholarship sponsored by Wiley Brothers, Inc., has been established to support students in the Construction Technology program. The scholarship provides an annual award of the cost of two semesters of tuition.

The Gordon and Linda Zuckerman General Endowment Fund. Gordon Zuckerman, a member of the college’s class of 1962 and a current officer of the Foundation Board of Trustees, asked that the initial annual payouts from the fund go to support the expansion of the college’s nursing program — a priority campaign initiative — as a match required by the grant from the Charitable Venture Foundation.

Foundation Golf Classic Nets $54,500

The 14th Annual U.W. Marx Inc. Golf Classic, held July 21 at the Country Club of Troy, netted more than $54,000.

Proceeds from the annual event benefit the Foundation’s Annual Fund, which assists the college in addressing unmet needs and taking advantage of unexpected opportunities. In the past, golf proceeds have funded scholarships, technology enhancements, campus beautification and special programs for disabled students.

More than 150 golfers participated in this year’s event. A foursome representing the Times Union—Matt Clarke, Mike Danielli, Steve Frazee and Al Riccardi—won the Trustees’ Cup, which is presented to the foursome with the lowest gross score; the foursome had a score of 55. Another foursome—Steve Sala, Bill Shannon, Don McLaughlin and Andy Giordiano—won the President’s Cup, which is presented to the foursome with the lowest net score; that foursome had a score of 58.

“The growing success of our golf tournament is a testament to the fact that the college plays an integral role in the Capital Region economy,” said Foundation President Sarah M. Boggess, who also serves as the college’s vice president for institutional advancement. “Corporate support is crucial to community colleges across the country, and Hudson Valley Community College is no exception. We are incredibly grateful for the support that business leaders and community members provide for this event year after year.”
Community College’s Otto V. Guenther Career Achievement Award in recognition of his commitment to the college, its alumni and the Capital Region. Allen joined C.T. Male as a rod person in 1969, working his way up over the next 30 years to become president of the Latham-based engineering firm in 1999. Allen is deeply involved in the community, serving on the board of the Saratoga Center for the Family, the Leadership Saratoga Alumni Association and many others. He has received the National Association of Community Leadership Distinguished Leadership Award and the Good Scout Award of the Twin Rivers Council of the Boy Scouts.

Dr. Robert H. Hill II, received the 1953 Award for Distinguished Service to Hudson Valley Community College by a Non-Alumnus. Dr. Hill is an active member of the community and serves as the chair of the Hudson Valley Community College Board of Trustees. In addition, he has been a member of the college’s Dental Hygiene Advisory Board since 1982. In 2006, Dr. Hill served as chairperson of the college’s first-ever Celebration of Excellence. This Gala event raised more than $250,000 for the college’s Dental Hygiene department, helping to offset the high costs of this essential program.

Peter Semenza ’84, who served as president of the Hudson Valley Alumni Association for 20 years, received the 1953 Award for Distinguished Service to Hudson Valley Community College by an Alumnus. A Marketing graduate, Semenza has been one of Hudson Valley’s most active alumni, and now serves on the Foundation’s Board of Directors. Since 1997, Semenza has served as the executive director of St. Peter’s Hospital Foundation, raising more than $35 million.

Corey L. Ellis ’94, an Albany City Councilman, received the Hudson Valley Community College Humanitarian Service Award. A lifelong Albany resident, Ellis earned a Liberal Arts and Science degree from Hudson Valley. He has devoted much of his life to various community service activities, including working with inner-city youths through the Scout Reach program, the Catholic Charities youth mentoring program and the Arbor Hill Little League.

Anthony Levens, manager of Northeast Regional Operations for Raytheon Professional Services, received the Corporate Excellence Award on behalf of his company. Raytheon Professional Services is a global leader in learning services. Levens has partnered with the college to deliver several important training contracts for the college’s Automotive Technical Services programs. This positive relationship has led to more than $114,994 in General Motors equipment donations for Hudson Valley.

Hudson Valley Community College Foundation Awards Scholarships

This fiscal year, the Foundation awarded more than $400,000 in scholarships to 316 Hudson Valley students from around the Capital Region. A total of $164,000 in scholarships were awarded to 166 students at a spring reception and $236,000 in scholarships were awarded to 186 students at last fall’s reception.

Foundation scholarships are awarded based on a variety of criteria, including need, academic performance, civic involvement and academic program; the awards ranged from $70 to full tuition.

Director of Advancement Services and Donor Relations Hired

Louise Bradford, a fundraising and public relations professional, was named director of advancement services and donor relations. She brings over a decade of fundraising, community relations and marketing experience.

In this position, Bradford will work with the Hudson Valley Community College Foundation to oversee the Foundation’s information systems and financial statements, manage the Foundation’s scholarship program, manage donor relations, develop marketing and promotional materials, and oversee the planning of all events related to the Foundation.

Bradford comes to Hudson Valley from the AIDS Council of NENY in Albany, where she was the director of development and marketing. Prior to that, she worked for the Danville Science Center in Danville, VA, where she was the director of development. Bradford was also previously a major gifts officer at Hargrave Military Academy in Chatham, VA.

“What attracted me to Hudson Valley Community College was the college’s academic reputation and the Foundation’s commitment to the Hudson Valley community,” said Bradford. “The Foundation has a campaign goal of $10 million. I am looking forward to being a part of the continued success of the Foundation campaign and the college’s contribution to the community.”
Director of Annual Giving and Alumni Affairs Hired

Laurel Colasurdo, a fundraising, event planning and alumni affairs professional, was named director of annual giving and alumni affairs at Hudson Valley Community College. She brings nine years of event planning, alumni affairs and higher education management experience to the Foundation.

Colasurdo will oversee the Foundation’s annual fund, develop and maintain a calendar of annual fund activities, oversee all fundraising events, plan and manage alumni recognition events and programs, and work with the Alumni Association to build its volunteer base and organizational potential.

Colasurdo comes to Hudson Valley from Russell Sage College, where she was the director of alumnae relations and executive director of Russell Sage College alumnae association. Prior to that, she worked for the Albany Medical Center Foundation, where she was the director of special projects.

“I am thrilled to be working at Hudson Valley Community College,” said Colasurdo. “I am looking forward to working closely with the alumni to keep them connected with the Hudson Valley community through networking, social events, mentoring, community involvement and philanthropy.”

Foundation Raises $53,876 to Benefit Energy, Building and Engineering Technology Endowment

The Hudson Valley Community College Foundation has attracted nearly $54,000 in commitments in support of a new endowment fund created to ensure that the college has the resources it needs to support its high-cost, high-demand Energy, Building and Engineering Technology programs.

Last fall, the Foundation announced the new Energy, Building and Engineering Technology endowment and held the college’s third annual Celebration of Excellence gala to kick off the initiative. More than 100 professionals from throughout the region attended the gala, which was held in the Bulmer Telecommunications Center.

Documented shortages of individuals entering the energy, engineering, building, and engineering technology professions are ubiquitous on a national level, and the northeastern region of New York State has not been exempt from these realities. The aging and imminent retirement of today’s scientists and engineers, an insufficient number of young scholars in our nation’s science, technology, and engineering pipelines to replace those who will soon retire, and the under-representation of more than half or our student population (women and minorities) in these challenging academic programs have all led to what many in these fields have characterized as a “quiet crisis.”

Much like numerous other high-cost academic programs, colleges and universities are simply not graduating sufficient numbers of engineers and scientists. In fact, during this time of great economic demand, many institutions of higher learning—most often at the community college level—are closing the doors of these programs due to fiscal constraints. With costs to educate students in these professions topping the $40,000 mark over the two-year associate degree term, most schools who continue to offer these programs run them as loss centers for the institution. This is certainly the case at Hudson Valley Community College, where tuition and related fees don’t even begin to approach half these total costs.

The new endowment will be used to meet a variety of needs, including equipment and curriculum development. If it continues to grow, it may ultimately allow the college to fund the hiring of additional faculty, which would allow for the expansion of the program.
Heritage Society Inducts New Members

5 Individuals Name College in Estate Plans

At the annual Heritage Society Dinner held in September 2007 at Wolferts Roost Country Club in Albany, the college’s Foundation inducted five individuals into the ranks of its planned giving society. Recognized that evening were Robert Turner, Kevin Johnson, a member of the class of 1974; Mark Schmiedeshoff, a member of the class of 1972; Lori Schmiedeshoff, a member of the class of 1985; and the late Jayne Regan Harris, who left a significant bequest to the college in support of the Respiratory Therapy program.

The Heritage Society was established in 2003 to recognize and honor donors who have generously provided, or plan to provide, gifts to the college through bequests, trusts, and other life income gifts. Society membership is a reflection of the highest of values and commitment to future educational excellence. As a testimony of their gratitude, members are dedicated to building our campus, advancing our academic programs, and generally making a difference for future generations of students. Committed to education with their philanthropic acts, these individuals understand the critical need for the college’s financial future and the continued vitality that creates educational excellence for future generations.

Others interested in joining the Heritage Society should contact Marv LeRoy, the college’s Chief Development Officer, at m.leroy@hvcc.edu. General information about the society may also be found at www.hvcc.edu/foundation/plannedgiving.

Chairman of the Foundation’s Board of Directors Appointed

Michael C. Danieli of Troy was named chairman of the Board of Directors of the Hudson Valley Community College Foundation. Danieli has been a board member since 2005 and had served as first vice chairman for one year. Danieli is serving a two-year term as chairman. Danieli also is an active board member with Vanderheyden Hall and the Seton Health Foundation.

“No Reservations: An Evening with Anthony Bourdain” was sponsored by the Alumni Association and the college’s Cultural Affairs program in April 2008.

Students from the Collegiate Academic Support Program (CASP). In 2007–08, the college’s Foundation established the CASP Fund to provide emergency assistance to CASP students who face a catastrophic situation and need funds to continue their education.
About the Hudson Valley Community College Foundation

The mission of the Hudson Valley Community College Foundation is to foster enduring relationships that build advocacy and support of Hudson Valley Community College. It does so, in large part, by securing private funds to supplement the college's traditional revenue sources.

Since 1983, the Hudson Valley Community College Foundation has provided support for the college and its students. Founded by a dedicated group of volunteers leaders who understood the need for affordable access to educational opportunities, a proud tradition of commitment and caring began and remains today at the core of the Foundation’s mission.

A not-for-profit, independent 501(c)(3) corporation founded in 1983, the Foundation is governed by a Board of Directors who participate in and oversee the Foundation’s philanthropic activities, which are designed to produce a positive and beneficial impact upon the college, its students, and the communities it serves.

While committed to raising funds for student scholarships, the Foundation secures private resources to provide support for faculty enrichment programs, new and innovative academic initiatives, student development activities, enhanced student support services, cultural programs, equipment purchases, facility improvements, and technology enhancements. The Foundation has supported many initiatives through the generous support and assistance of faculty, staff, alumni, friends, and corporate partners in the community.

Economic uncertainty and increase demands on tax dollars are diminishing public support for community colleges. As a result, community colleges are turning to private philanthropy as a necessary resource to ensure continued excellence in teaching and learning. Faced with dwindling public funding, the college faces the need to diversify funding streams in order to prepare students to meet the challenges of the future and become the leaders of tomorrow.

Philanthropic support to Hudson Valley Community College and its charitable foundation totaled $1,319,369 during the 2007-08 academic year.

Ways to Give

Supporting Hudson Valley Community College through a tax-deductible gift will ensure that the college remains at the forefront of higher education in the Capital Region. Your generous support enables the college to prosper leaving a legacy of academic excellence that future generations will enjoy.

There are many ways to make a gift and your contribution may be tailored to meet your desires and objectives. Gifts may be designated for a specific purpose or may be given without restrictions.

There are a variety of ways to contribute to Hudson Valley Community College:

- Visit the Foundation online at foundation.hvcc.edu/gift
- Call (518) 629-8012 to make a pledge or contribute using a Visa, MasterCard, Discover or American Express.
- Send your gift (check or money order made payable to the Hudson Valley Community College Foundation, 80 Vandenburg Avenue, Troy, NY 12180).
- If you’re a Hudson Valley or New York State employee, you can make a gift through payroll deduction. For more information, contact your agency’s payroll officer or call the Hudson Valley Community College Foundation at (518) 629-8012.

All gifts made through the Foundation are tax deductible to the fullest extent of the law.
