Here’s what you will find:

Marvin Library Learning Commons
The Dwight Marvin Library, Learning Centers and the Instructional Media Center are partners within the Marvin Library Learning Commons building. You will find group study rooms, access to technology, assistance with academics and research, and a café for a beverage or snack between classes or while studying.

Librarian Assistance
You can save time and minimize frustration when you start your research with the help of a librarian. Librarians are available for immediate assistance in the Writing and Research Center six days a week. You also can make a research appointment to meet individually with a librarian for up to one hour. Through the “Ask a Librarian” service on our web site, librarians are available to assist you any time by text, chat or e-mail.

The Dwight Marvin Library Web Site is http://library.hvcc.edu
The library’s web site is the gateway to a vast collection of resources. Find books in our library through the online catalog or follow links to the catalogs of other SUNY or local libraries. Millions of articles are available online through many research databases. Use Research Guides to locate regularly updated subject-based resource guides and find help with proper citation formats when writing papers.

Books, Journals and More
The library has thousands of books, videos, journals, e-books, newspapers and other resources to support courses and programs offered at the college. Using interlibrary loan services, you may borrow books from other libraries and have them delivered here to campus for short-term use.

Textbooks on Reserve
Your course textbooks may be available via the reserve lending service. Textbooks on reserve may be borrowed for use within the building only. Visit http://hvcc.libguides.com/reservetextbooks listing.

Study Spaces
Both silent study areas and group study rooms are available to make your library visit as productive as possible. Reserve a group study room online at http://hvcc.libcal.com.

Technology
Wireless access is available throughout the building for laptops and mobile devices. The Computer Learning Center on the lower level provides access to the academic computing environment. Printing is available from networked laser printers. Current students may borrow a laptop for use in designated areas.
