WHAT IS ONLINE LEARNING?

Online learning at Hudson Valley Community College involves using the Internet and email to access course material, submit homework assignments and communicate with the instructor and other students. Online learning course materials include textbooks, student guides, Internet sites and may require CDs, DVDs or videos. Online learning means that students can work at locations and times that are convenient for them. Although most work can be done from home, some courses require labs or other on-campus meetings. A few courses may also have midterms or finals on campus. The course categories are identified with various section numbers. Please see course listings for details.

IS ONLINE LEARNING RIGHT FOR ME?

Most online learning students juggle busy schedules, work full-time or part-time, have children, or can't easily get to the Hudson Valley campus. Online learning is for students who are motivated, work well independently, and are comfortable using a computer. Check with your advisor to make sure the courses offered fit into your program.

Generally, online courses are set up in weekly modules with assignments due by the end of the week. Don't let yourself fall behind! Our surveys show that good time management is a key ingredient to being successful in your online course.

If you would like to find out more, we have developed an interactive exercise to help you better understand the dynamics of online learning. You can access the exercise "Is Online Learning Right for You?" at www.hvcc.edu/dl.

ARE ADMINISTRATIVE POLICIES AND PROCEDURES FOR ONLINE COURSES DIFFERENT THAN FOR ON-CAMPUS COURSES?

Online courses are treated the same as on-campus courses in regards to tuition, financial aid, registration dates and deadlines, transcripts, transferability, etc. All online courses are fully accredited and taught by Hudson Valley Community College faculty.

ARE THERE ANY REQUIREMENTS?

To be a successful online learning student you should:

- Be comfortable using a word processing program. You should also be familiar with sending email and using basic functions such as "copy" and "paste."
- Be able to budget your time and priorities. Online learning courses are NOT self-paced. They follow the term calendar as far as registration, midterms, finals, etc., and homework assignments are due on a regular basis.
- Meet with your academic advisor to see if online learning is right for you.
- Be aware that certain courses, including those with a CISS or CMPT course prefix which involve learning specific computer software, will require access to the software being taught (e.g. Visual Basic). All students are provided access to this software in the on-campus computer labs. However, for students who live at a distance or cannot come to campus to use the software, an additional purchase or upgrade to their home computer system may be required. If you have questions about specific course software, contact the department from which the course is being offered.

• Computer Requirements:

You will need access to a computer with an Internet connection that meets certain minimum requirements.

Please be advised that not all of Blackboard's features and functionalities are supported on mobile devices. You still need access to a computer to take an online course.

To check your system for compatibility, go to www.hvcc.edu/check and click on Check System & Browser Requirements.
